"Is he silent on the recall of elective officials and judicial decisions because he fears to offend the stand-'pat Republicans?" is another ques-tion. Mr. Colby's declaration for continuing the power of the courts to issue injunctions in strike cases, Mr. Osborne says, is a step toward removing the power of the Legislature to define crimes and prescribe their penalties. Following is his statement

several weeks ago I asked Mr. Colby a series of questions designed to force him to state his position on certain important issues concerning which he was silent or evasive in his platform. After weeks of silence, he has attempted in speeches before a few of his followers in Morristown and Elizabeth to answer some of these question, but still remains silent on others.

"Denies Promise to Support Me."

"He first denies my statement that he promised to support me for the nomination for governor, claiming that he promised to support me only in the event of my nomination. It is fortunate that the truth as to this matter does not depend solely upon my memory or the memory of others to whom Mr. Colby made the same statement. He, himself, in a carefully prepared statement published in the Newark Evening News, of May 6, used the following explicit language: "Only last Friday I lunched with "Denies Promise to Support Me." "Only last Friday I lunched with Mr. Osborne, at his request, and had a long conference about the future plans of the party. He told me he wanted to be a candidate for governor, and I assured him I would support the party of the winter the sure of the party.
